PROFESSIONAL PROFILE

I provide evidence-based psychotherapy and assessments for adults and youths from varied backgrounds and clinical settings (e.g., community, inpatient, forensic). I have experience with a wide range of clinical presentations (e.g., depression, anxiety, trauma, anger, substance use, behavioral health concerns, relationship difficulties, stage of life transitions, burnout, return-to work programs, psychosis, head injuries, developmental difficulties, suicidality, violence). My approach is collaborative, flexible, and tailored to the unique situation, goals, and clinical needs of my clients. Therapeutically, I integrate cognitive-behavioral therapy (CBT) and acceptance-commitment therapy (ACT) with elements of other treatment modalities in order to maximize intervention success for each given individual (e.g., motivational interviewing, mindfulness skills, communication and relational skills building, exposure therapy, attachment-and trauma-based interventions). I also pay close attention to the process of psychotherapy and the past and current dynamics of my clients' lives.

I provide consultations to colleagues, physicians, lawyers, the Courts, and supervise graduate students. I work well with others (e.g., multidisciplinary teams) and strive in collegial environments which support personal and professional growth. I have a strong research background, co-authored several publications, and received several research grants and awards.
